

Matthew L. Kellam Workforce Development and Planning Coordinator Talent Acquisition

Matt Kellam is the Workforce Development and Planning Coordinator for Dominion Energy. With over 20 years of talent acquisition and workforce development experience, Matt has led teams specializing in technical staffing, military and veteran recruitment, college and university relations, student employment and scholarship programs, building partnerships with community and civic organizations, and more. In collaboration with education, industry and government partners, Matt and his teams are responsible for establishing education and training, military and veteran, and career pathways leading into the Energy industry.

Throughout his career, Matt has been recognized and awarded for his workforce and talent pipeline development efforts and for his commitment to diversity and inclusion. He has served as a member of several of organizations and councils and has held leadership roles with a few of these groups. These groups include the Virginia Energy Workforce Consortium (past-chairperson, advisor), Center for Energy Workforce Development, Commonwealth of Virginia's STEM Education Commission, Commonwealth of Virginia's Build Virginia Advisory Board, Virginia Chamber of Commerce's Workforce and Education Executive Committee, Virginia Chamber of Commerce's Military & Veterans Affairs Executive Committee, and Dominion Energy Veterans Resource Group (advisor).

Matt served in the United States Marine Corps Reserves for 6 years. He attended Virginia Commonwealth University and studied Mass Communications – Public Relations. Matt and his wife have two daughters and they reside in Richmond, VA.